...for the Next Generation

At AMGRAPH, we've built our business on environmental stewardship and sustainability with a commitment to clean air and water, sustainable packaging and reduced dependence on natural resources. AMGRAPH customers can rest assured our packaging meets the sustainability needs of the next generation. AMGRAPH understands the Earth's resources are a priceless asset to be managed for the betterment of our customers, employees, and the global community. We are dedicated to meeting the world's needs today, without compromising the Earth's ability to meet the needs of tomorrow.

Since our inception – long before many companies developed a corporate conscience or jumped on the "green" bandwagon – AMGRAPH has invested heavily in our facility to be one of the country's model operating plants. We've always used EB and water-based inks – even before they were in vogue. In 2009, we will open our brand new, earth-friendly, LEED-certified facility that features the latest printing and laminating technology, as well as radiant heating, natural lighting and geothermic heating and cooling. And we pledge to continually raise our standards for environmentally friendly manufacturing practices and sustainability.
